

White Paper

May 2024

Should Emerging Market Debt Investors Worry About Higher-For-Longer?

Author

Zachary Knope, CFA Lead Research Analyst Investment Solutions Group

In Brief

- This paper explores the implications that higher interest rates may have for sovereign emerging market debt (EMD) investors.
- US Federal Reserve rate hikes appear to have ended, and the market now expects rate cuts in 2024.
 However, with inflation pressures persisting and robust US economic growth and labor market and productivity, the probability that US rates will settle well above post-Global Financial Crisis (GFC) and pre-Covid levels has increased.
- EMD presents an attractive opportunity for the long-term fixed income investor with a high tolerance for risk, given strong fundamentals, yield opportunity and duration exposure, but an active approach with careful considerations to country and issuer selection will be critical in an environment in which rates remain above the lows of the past decade.

Coming off a period in which central banks hiked interest rates to multi-decade highs, the trajectory of inflation has reversed course and global labor markets have remained resilient, widening the path towards an elusive "soft-landing." This has raised the probability that US interest rates will settle at a higher level than we saw for much of the post-GFC period, but leaves us with the question, how might persistently higher interest rates affect emerging market debt?

Given the relatively short history of EMD investing past analogs are rare. One comparable soft-landing episode occurred in the mid- to late-1990s. During this time, rates remained in the 4.75% to 6.50% range before the next significant rate cutting cycle began in 2001, following the tech bubble burst.

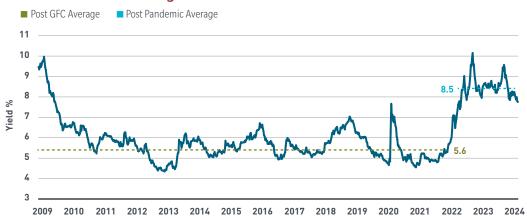

The 1990s were a challenging period for EMD. There were widespread defaults, currency crises and significant volatility. Moreover, emerging market macro conditions were much different. Many emerging markets had fixed exchange rates, which turned out to be an important vulnerability in a world where capital could move freely among countries. Today, very few emerging market countries have fixed exchange rates, and the emerging market landscape is considerably more mature, reflecting the progress made on policy, institutional and fiscal reforms many countries have undertaken to shore up access to capital and to enable growth.

For the EMD investor, today's higher rate environment will have implications that demand an active approach with careful considerations to country and issuer selection. Below, we examine some of the important factors EMD investors should consider in this evolving environment.

Focus on the Fundamentals

The foremost implication of higher interest rates on emerging market issuers is higher debt servicing costs, which make it more difficult to borrow money and service debt obligations. This can limit the ability of emerging market economies to put capital to productive use, weigh on economic growth and increase economic uncertainty. As Exhibit 1 demonstrates, the average EMD yield has jumped from a pre-pandemic average of 5.6% to a post-pandemic average of 8.5%.

Exhibit 1: EMD Sovereign Yield

Source: Bloomberg. Weekly data from 1 July 2009 through 29 March 2024. Post GFC Average calculated using daily data from 1 July 2009 through 28 February 2022. Post Pandemic Average calculated using daily data from 1 May 2022 through 2 April 2024. EMD Sovereign = the J.P. Morgan EMBI Global Diversified Index.

However, despite the rapid rise in yields, higher interest costs are unlikely to tip the fiscal position of many emerging market economies into troubled territory thanks to the composition, improvement and strength of several fiscal metrics, including the amortization profile of the asset class's maturity wall, external debt, reserves and fiscal balances.

The amortization profile of the asset class's upcoming bond maturities provides one window into the impacts of higher rates and helps paint the picture that the impact of higher rates will not be felt immediately. Rather, it will take time for lower coupon bonds to roll off the books, to be replaced by higher coupon bonds priced at today's yields, increasing the overall cost of capital gradually. Exhibit 2 helps demonstrate much of the current outstanding debt has been financed at last decade's favorable yields, helping to forgo the impact of today's higher rates.

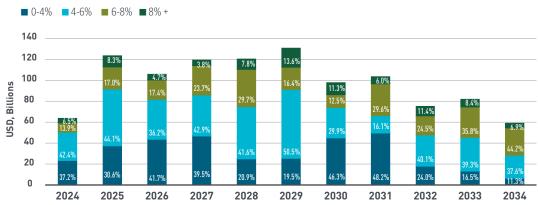

Exhibit 2: Sovereign EMD Maturity Wall by Coupon Rate

Source: Bloomberg. Data as of 2 April 2024. Maturity profile generated for all emerging market debt government bonds classified as sovereigns, government agencies, government regional, supranationals, and government local denominated in USD. Includes fixed and floating rate coupons. % displayed represents the % of each coupon rate bucket relative to the total maturity.

The composition of EMD external debt balances is also supportive of higher borrowing costs remaining manageable for the asset class. As the name implies, external debt measures the amount outstanding owed to non-residents of an economy, and there are two important trends to consider. First, growth in EM external debt has largely been in the private sector while government external debt balances have remained at sustainable levels. Second, external debt to GDP ratios have improved post-COVID. Inflation, in the form of higher export prices, has supported nominal GDP growth in relation to existing debt stock, particularly for energy exporters, and have driven recent improvement in the external debt to GDP metric.

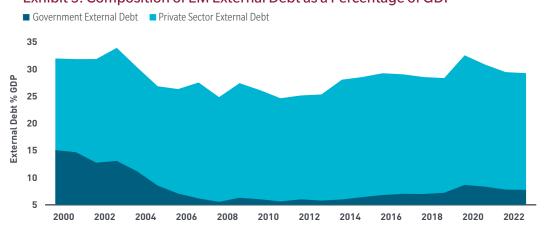

Exhibit 3: Composition of EM External Debt as a Percentage of GDP

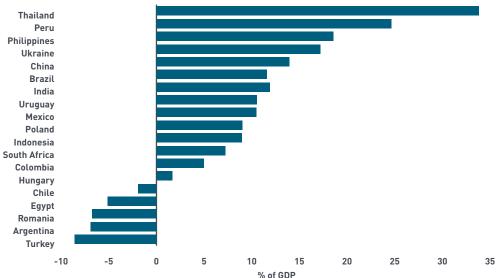

Source: J.P. Morgan. Annual data from 2000 through 2022. 2023 values represent JPM forecasts. Individual country and regional data compiled from official government sources.

Currency reserves are another important factor, suggesting many emerging market countries are able to withstand higher debt servicing costs. Reserves act as a buffer and can be used to assess a country's flexibility in reacting to unexpected adverse events, which have limited capital flows to EM in the past. This is particularly important for hard-currency debt investors, as local-currency debt is not constrained by the stock of foreign currency reserves to meet near-term debt obligations.

Determining the adequate currency reserve level for any country is a challenging task that must balance factors such as short-term debt levels, capital flight risk, import sustainability and broad money supply, as well as weighing the opportunity costs of holding cash versus investing the funds productively elsewhere.²

One measure of reserve adequacy is to look at a country's foreign exchange reserves, minus total short-term foreign currency denominated debt (public and private), less the current account deficit.³ Exhibit 4 reinforces that reserves across many EM countries are healthy. However, there are exceptions, and active management with a robust country selection process is of paramount importance in this space.

Exhibit 4: Reserve Adequacy Levels

Source: Dallas Federal Reserve & IMF. Data as of 31 December 2022. Reserve adequacy measured by the Guidotti-Greenspan Rule and equals central bank foreign exchange reserves minus short-term foreign currency denominated debt plus the four-quarter moving average of the current account, all as a percentage of GDP. From paper entitled 'Emerging-market Countries Insulate Themselves from Fed Rate Hikes' by Davis and Sagnanert, dated August 8, 2023.

Fiscal balances are of paramount importance as the cost of capital climbs and help measure how much government spending is reliant on debt funding. Fiscal balances deteriorated sharply during the pandemic as countries across the globe unleashed unprecedented support for their economies but have stabilized and since recovered.

Exhibit 5: EM vs Advanced Economy Fiscal Balances

Source: IMF, OECD, J.P. Morgan. Annual data from 1995 through 2022. 2023 values represent forecasts. EM data from J.P. Morgan. Advanced Economies data from the IMF & OECD.

Many factors impact a country's fiscal balance. Revenues are impacted by tax policies and grants, as well as the trailing impact of past fiscal expenditures. In a higher rate environment, expenditure management is key to ensuring debts are successfully serviced and repaid, while ensuring that debt levels do not get out of hand. For EMD investors, the good news is that, in aggregate, EM fiscal balances are comparable to their advanced economy counterparts, suggesting the yield premium of EMD over developed market debt may offer real value, but are current fiscal balances sustainable in a world of higher rates?

One way to evaluate this question is through demand for credit default swaps, which act as insurance against sovereign defaults. Presently, EMD credit default swaps spreads are well below the prior decade's average, indicating the market is not worried about widespread defaults across EMD.

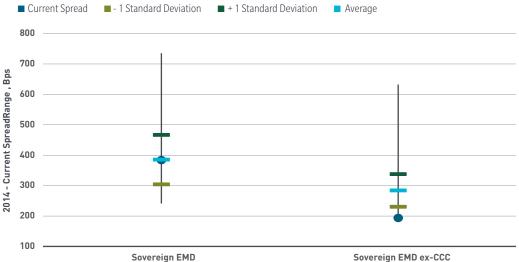

Exhibit 6: Demand for EMD Default Insurance Below Average

Source: Bloomberg, IHS Markit. IBOXUMSE Generic Emerging Market Credit Default Swap Index. Weekly data from 3 January 2014 through 22 March 2024.

With Fundamentals Sound, What Might Higher Rates Mean for Future Returns?

EM valuations, characterized by spreads and yields, warrant careful consideration in a higher rate environment. In hard landing environments, higher rates are often followed by a recession in which spreads typically widen, reflecting increased credit risk. However, this dynamic often provides an attractive entry point for investors who can afford to wait for spreads to narrow. In the current environment, in which sentiment favors a soft landing, EM sovereign spreads trade fair relative to recent history on the surface, but a closer examination reveals that spreads in the higher credit quality segments of the index are rich. This does not mean there is not value in these tranches to be found. It places a premium on managers with the skill and expertise to identify and selectively capitalize on opportunities that arise.

Exhibit 7: Selectivity is Key with Sovereign EMD Spreads Tight

Source: J.P. Morgan. Spread ranges, average, +/- standard deviations calculated based on daily data from 2 January 2014 through 1 April 2024. Sovereign EMD = J.P. Morgan EMBI Global Diversified Index. Current = 1 April 2024. Spreads are z-spread to worst.

While spreads demand selectivity, yields in the EM space are attractive and offer investors an opportunity to lock in high coupon rates that historically have been a driver of long-term returns.

Exhibit 8 helps demonstrate the strong relationship between starting yields and historical annualized returns. For starting yields that range 30 basis points above and below the starting yield of 7.8% as of April 1, 2024, the historical median 5-year annualized return is 8.1%, and returns have ranged from 4.8% to 10.3%.

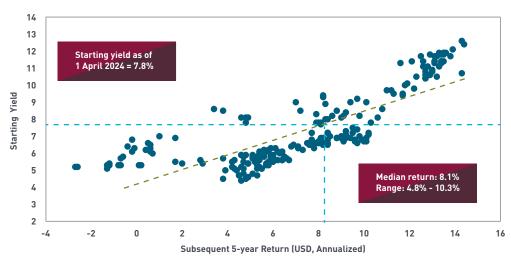

Exhibit 8: Sovereign EMD Starting Yields and Subsequent 5-year Total Returns

Source: Bloomberg. Sovereign EMD = J.P. Morgan EMBI Global Diversified Index. Monthly data from 31 January 2000 through 31 March 2024. Subsequent 5-year returns are in USD and annualized. Past performance is no guarantee of future results. It is not possible to invest directly in an index.

While emerging market debt is associated with higher risk, the asset class offers some of the highest yields across global fixed income and all three emerging market debt asset classes (EM Sovereign, EM Credit and EM Local) also offer attractive duration exposure in relation to yield and would stand to benefit if global central banks begin cutting interest rates as inflation continues to normalize.

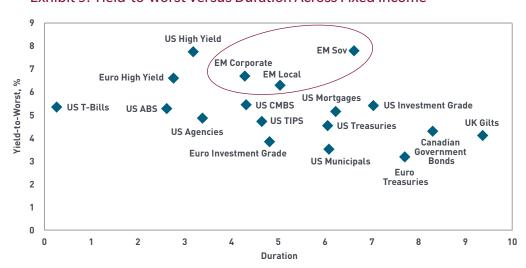

Exhibit 9: Yield-to-worst Versus Duration Across Fixed Income

Source: Bloomberg. Data as of 1 April 2024. Duration measured by option-adjusted duration to Treasuries. US T-Bills = Bloomberg US T-Bills 2-5 Mths Index. US ABS = Bloomberg US Agg ABS Index. US High Yield = Bloomberg US Corporate High Yield Index. US CMBS = Bloomberg US Agg CMBS Index. US Agencies = Bloomberg US Agencies Index. US Treasuries = Bloomberg US Treasury Index. US Municipals = Bloomberg Municipal Bond Index. US Mortgages = Bloomberg US MBS Index. US TIPS = Bloomberg US Treasury Inflation-Linked Bond Index. US Investment Grade = Bloomberg US Corporate Index. Euro Investment Grade = Bloomberg Pan European Aggregate Index. Euro High Yield = Bloomberg Pan European High Yield Index. Euro Treasuries = Bloomberg Pan European Agg Treasury Index. UK Gilts = Bloomberg Sterling Gilts Index. EM Credit = J.P. Morgan CEMBI Broad Diversified Index. EM Local = J.P. Morgan GBI-EM Global Diversified Composite Index. Canadian Government Bonds = Bloomberg Canada Aggregate Government-Related Index.

Conclusion

A post-pandemic, higher-rate world poses debt servicing challenges to borrowers across the globe. Emerging market countries have seen significant progress in fiscal metrics, institutions and policies that place the asset class in a strong fundamental position and better prepared to overcome the challenges of higher rates, making it an attractive investment opportunity given the high level of yields and duration exposure. However, the idiosyncratic nature of the asset class and its wide investable universe demand an active approach, backed by robust research and risk management processes with a focus on country and issuer selection to both help manage downside risk and capitalize on opportunities presented by temporary dislocations in the market.

Endnotes

Marney, Szentivanyi, Poojary, & Lalaguna. 'Emerging Markets Debt & Fiscal Indicators – 2022', November 2022. J.P. Morgan Research.

² Arslan & Cantu. The Size of Foreign Exchange Reserves', 31 October 2019. Bank for International Settlements.

³ Davis & Sagnanert. 'Emerging-Market Countries Insulate Themselves from Fed Rate Hikes' 8 August 2023. Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas.

Emerging markets can have less market structure, depth, and regulatory, custodial or operational oversight and greater political, social, geopolitical and economic instability than developed markets

Information has been obtained from sources believed to be reliable but J.P. Morgan does not warrant its completeness or accuracy. The Index is used with permission. The Index may not be copied, used, or distributed without J.P. Morgan's prior written approval. Copyright 2019, J.P. Morgan Chase & Co. All rights reserved.

Source: Bloomberg Index Services Limited. BLOOMBERG® is a trademark and service mark of Bloomberg Finance L.P. and its affiliates (collectively "Bloomberg"). Bloomberg or Bloomberg's licensors own all proprietary rights in the Bloomberg Indices. Bloomberg neither approves or endorses this material or guarantees the accuracy or completeness of any information herein, or makes any warranty, express or implied, as to the results to be obtained therefrom and, to the maximum extent allowed by law, neither shall have any liability or responsibility for injury or damages arising in connection therewith.

The views expressed herein are those of the MFS Investment Solutions Group within the MFS distribution unit and may differ from those of MFS portfolio managers and research analysts. These views are subject to change at any time and should not be construed as the Advisor's investment advice, as securities recommendations, or as an indication of trading intent on behalf of MFS. Unless otherwise indicated, logos and product and service names are trademarks of MFS® and its affiliates and may be registered in certain countries.

Distributed by: U.S. - MFS Institutional Advisors, Inc. ("MFSI"), MFS Investment Management and MFS Fund Distributors, Inc., Member SIPC; Latin America - MFS International Ltd.; Canada - MFS Investment Management Canada Limited. Note to UK and Switzerland readers: Issued in the UK and Switzerland by MFS International (U.K.) Limited ("MIL UK"), a private limited company registered in England and Wales with the company number 03062718, and authorised and regulated in the conduct of investment business by the UK Financial Conduct Authority. MIL UK, an indirect subsidiary of MFS®, has its registered office at One Carter Lane, London, EC4V 5ER. Note to Europe (ex UK and Switzerland) readers: Issued in Europe by MFS Investment Management (Lux) S.à r.l. (MFS Lux) – authorized under Luxembourg law as a management company for Funds domiciled in Luxembourg and which both provide products and investment services to institutional investors and is registered office is at S.a.r.l. 4 Rue Albert Borschette, Luxembourg L-1246. Tel: 352 2826 12800. This material shall not be circulated or distributed to any person other than to professional investors (as permitted by local regulations) and should not be relied upon or distributed to persons where such reliance or distribution would be contrary to local regulation; Singapore – MFS International Singapore Pte. Ltd. (CRN 201228809M); Australia/New Zealand - MFS International Australia Pty Ltd ("MFS Australia") (ABN 68 607 579 537) holds an Australian financial services licence number 485343. MFS Australia is regulated by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission.; Hong Kong - MFS International (Hong Kong) Limited ("MIL HK"), a private limited company licensed and regulated by the Hong Kong Securities and Futures Commission (the "SFC"). MIL HK is approved to engage in dealing in securities and asset management regulated activities and may provide certain investment services to "professional investors" as defined in the Securities and Futures Ordinance ("SFO").; For Professional Investors in China - MFS Financial Management Consulting (Shanghai) Co., Ltd. 2801-12, 28th Floor, 100 Century Avenue, Shanghai World Financial Center, Shanghai Pilot Free Trade Zone, 200120, China, a Chinese limited liability company registered to provide financial management consulting services; Japan - MFS Investment Management K.K., is registered as a Financial Instruments Business Operator, Kanto Local Finance Bureau (FIBO) No.312, a member of the Investment Trust Association, Japan and the Japan Investment Advisers Association. As fees to be borne by investors vary depending upon circumstances such as products, services, investment period and market conditions, the total amount nor the calculation methods cannot be disclosed in advance. All investments involve risks, including market fluctuation and investors may lose the principal amount invested. Investors should obtain and read the prospectus and/or document set forth in Article 37-3 of Financial Instruments and Exchange Act carefully before making the investments; Bahrain - This document has not been approved by the Central Bank of Bahrain which takes no responsibility for its contents. No offer to the public will be made in the Kingdom of Bahrain and this document is intended to be read by the addressee only and must not be passed to, issued to, or shown to the public generally. The Central Bank of Bahrain assumes no responsibility for the accuracy and completeness of the statements and information contained in this document and expressly disclaims any liability whatsoever for any loss howsoever arising from reliance upon the whole or any part of the contents of this document. The Board of Directors and the management of the issuer accepts responsibility for the information contained in this document. To the best of the knowledge and belief of the board of directors and the management, who have all taken all reasonable care to ensure that such is the case, the information contained in this document is in accordance with the facts and does not omit anything likely to affect the reliability of such information.; Kuwait - This document is not for general circulation to the public in Kuwait. The information has not been licensed for offering in Kuwait by the Kuwait Capital Markets Authority or any other relevant Kuwaiti government agency. No private or public offering of the information is being made in Kuwait, and no agreement relating to the information will be concluded in Kuwait. No marketing or solicitation or inducement activities are being used to offer or market the information in Kuwait.; Oman - For Residents of the Sultanate of Oman: The information contained in this document does not constitute a public offer of securities in the Sultanate of Oman as contemplated by the Commercial Companies Law of Oman (Royal Decree 4/74) or the Capital Market Law of Oman (Royal Decree 80/98). This information is being circulated on a limited basis only to corporate entities that fall within the description of sophisticated investors (Article 139 of the Executive Regulations of the Capital Market Law). The recipient acknowledges that they are a sophisticated investor who has experience in business and financial matters and is capable of evaluating the merits and risks on an investment.; South Africa - This document has not been approved by the Financial Services Board and neither MFS International (U.K.) Limited nor its funds are registered for public sale in South Africa.; UAE - This document, and the information contained herein, does not constitute, and is not intended to constitute, a public offer of securities in the United Arab Emirates and accordingly should not be construed as such. The information is only being offered to a limited number of exempt investors in the UAE who fall under one of the following categories of non-natural Qualified Investors: (1) an investor which is able to manage its investments on its own, namely: (a) the federal government, local governments, government entities and authorities or companies wholly-owned by any such entities; (b) international entities and organisations; or (c) a person licensed to carry out a commercial activity in the UAE, provided that investment is one of the objects of such person; or (2) an investor who is represented by an investment manager licensed by the SCA, (each a "non-natural Qualified Investor"). The information and data have not been approved by or licensed or registered with the UAE Central Bank, the Securities and Commodities Authority, the Dubai Financial Services Authority, the Financial Services Regulatory Authority or any other relevant licensing authorities or governmental agencies in the UAE (the "Authorities"). The Authorities assume no liability for any investment that the named addressee makes as a non-natural Qualified Investor diligence on the accuracy of the information relating to the securities. If you do not understand the contents of this document you should consult an authorised financial adviser.; Saudi Arabia - This document may not be distributed in the Kingdom except to such persons as are permitted under the Investment Funds Regulations issued by the Capital Market Authority. The Capital Market Authority does not make any representation as to the accuracy or completeness of this document, and expressly disclaims any liability whatsoever for any loss arising from, or incurred in reliance upon, any part of this document. Prospective purchasers of the securities offered hereby should conduct their own due diligence on the accuracy of the information relating to the securities. If you do not understand the contents of this document, you should consult an authorised financial adviser; Qatar - This material/fund is only being offered to a limited number of investors who are willing and able to conduct an independent investigation of the risks involved in an investment in such material/fund. The material does not constitute an offer to the public and is for the use only of the named addressee and should not be given or shown to any other person (other than employees, agents or consultants in connection with the addressee's consideration thereof). The fund has not been and will not be registered with the Qatar Central Bank or under any laws of the State of Qatar. No transaction will be concluded in your jurisdiction and any inquiries regarding the material/fund should be made to your contact outside Qatar.